Vienna (Wien, Austria) 1:11,000 Street Map, Laminated, BORCH

Synopsis

Vienna (Wien, Austria) 1:11,000 Street Map, laminated, BORCH Tourist plan for visitors to Vienna: clear, indexed, laminated and waterproof, highlighting top 30 sights and providing plans of the Hofburg and SchÃ¶nbrunn palaces, a map of the city's environs, and a diagram of the rail/metro network. The main plan at 1:11,000 covers the city from the Westbahnhof to Wien Neu Exhibition Centre and the Prater motorway interchange, and from the Augarten park to the SÃ¢dbahnhof. The plan indicates one way streets, prominently marks U and S-Bahn stations, and highlights places of interest, car parks, selected hotels, etc. An enlargement at 1:7,000 shows the Hofburg palace and the nearby museums in greater detail. On the reverse, plans at the same scale of 1:11,000 show the imperial palace of SchÃ¶nbrunn and its extensive grounds and the UNO-City. The environs of the Vienna are presented at 1:100,000, showing road access from the Schwechat airport and extending over to the Vienna Woods. All the plans and the road map are indexed, with list of both streets/localities and places of interest, parks, etc. The map also includes a diagram of the city's U and S-Bahn networks, a small administrative map of Austria, and information on the city's useful statistics, conversion charts for temperatures, weights and measurements, climate charts showing temperatures, sunshine hours, precipitation and humidity, overview maps, time zones, and much more... The map is soft-laminated, easy to fold, durable and water-repellent with a wipeable surface. Sheet size 66 x 49 cm / 26 x 19.5 in.

When I stay in a city of any size for more than a couple of nights, I find it indispensable to have a stand-alone map. I have a smartphone and use Google maps -- online where I can get wifi, offline where I can't, since I don't like to pay for international data roaming -- but it seems like there are always enough instances where a physical map just comes in handy for quick reference. Laminated maps are the best choice because you can use them when it's drizzling and you aren't under a sheltering roof. This map covers central Vienna in good detail. Prominent landmarks are shown, as are U- and S-Bahn stations. The map itself is waterproof and sturdy, but still sufficiently flexible to be folded against its primary axes. Note that it's not *totally* flexible -- it's a laminated map, not one printed on vinyl. You cannot fold this into a little square, for instance. In a major city, I tend to rely heavily on the transit system. This map includes an inset for the U- and S-Bahn lines, but this transit map image is too small and it is difficult to read the station names. Also, Vienna's tram lines are very helpful for getting around town, but they are not marked on either the transit map or the big main map. For these reasons, I'm only giving the map a four star rating.
