Harry Bridges On Trial (Illustrated And Annotated): How Union Labor Won Its Biggest Case

Synopsis

This volume was published in 1940. In the summer of 1939, Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, announced to America that Harry Bridges would be placed on trial to face deportation charges on the grounds that he was a member of a revolutionary organization advocating violent overthrow of the United States Government. James MacCauley Landis, Dean of the Harvard Law School and former Chairman of the Securities Exchange Commission, was appointed trial examiner. The trial, conducted on Angels' Island in San Francisco Bay, lasted nine exciting weeks. Harry Bridges spent two and a half days on the witness stand. Finally, on New Year's Day, 1940, after spending six months in careful study of several volumes of testimony, Dean Landis handed down his momentous decision. Estolv Ward, West Coast newspaper reporter, has captured the white heat of the hearings in HARRY BRIDGES ON TRIAL, dramatizing it vividly in living newspaper style.
