I loved this book! And I'm still going back to it to learn new stuff all the time! I'm not even really a hardcore metal guitar player, but just love the mix of heart and technique that you see in great metal playing - so I wanted to make metal part of my guitarist vocabulary and this book was a perfect book for that. But my favourite part of this book is the riffs. Oh, the riffs! They are Rob's original works styled after great metal players - and they sound fantastic. I've found many of them technically challenging - but having the audio really gives you inspiration to get there! The fact they are original also gives you a ton of inspiration for your own creativity. The material is put together in comprehensive and great accessible format - starting with the 60/70s stuff and rolling forward to modern metal - and the recorded material that you get with the book is just top notch audio. There's great stuff here on metal rhythms, scales, technique (tapping, etc) - and the riffs are all done in different styles of metal to give you a really good rounding across the genre. I particularly enjoyed the shout-outs in each section to real music that uses this technique (eg some songs that use Phrygian mode). Rob's done a stellar job with this book. Go grab a copy!

This is a great book for professional or amateur musicians who are serious about metal guitar playing and want to gain a more thorough knowledge of the style, its origins and performance practices. The book is comprehensive and begins with a section on the beginnings of metal guitar playing eventually delving into more complicated modern metal playing involving odd meters and rhythms. There are plenty of clearly notated examples with tab notation as well. If you don't read music, there is a primer at the beginning of the book to get you through the basics, but even if you don't work through that, there are good quality accompanying audio samples for all of the licks and guitar lines/progressions presented. A very detail oriented and thorough study book that puts the 'head' into 'Metalhead'. I would say, if you love playing metal or want to learn more about the style, then after going through this book, you will not ever have to fear being labeled a 'hack' and have a real knowledge base to draw from when playing in the style.

This course had me fooled at first. The pages looked like recycled paper and the book did not come with a companion CD. After a couple attempts I managed to download the audio clips and began at the beginning. I'm now starting chapter 4 and so far the content has been excellent. I'm even keeping a log on practice time and exercises covered. This is a great package for beginner and immediate alike. I highly recommend it to anyone who is serious about being a better metal guitarist!!

An excellent resource for any guitarist/instrumentalist/artist who is looking to take their technique and musicianship to the next level. Rob Thorpe presents us with an extremely comprehensive approach to the art of rhythm guitar playing that is suitable for aspiring beginners, determined intermediates, and seasoned pros. Loved the musical examples as well as the chapter highlighting what goes into creating your tone. Will be on the lookout for the next book.

The price is more in line with the quality of paper you receive. His other stuff is great, but TOO expensive. What can I say, I love beautiful books!!

I think it's a really good book. The variety of examples and riffs makes this book a really good resource. My only complain is about the theory it provides. The theory sections are super vague and almost useless. For any topic, you will have to look that whole topic up and learn it from another source.

This book is so thorough. It even has tips on how to get that illusive metal tone, which is ignored in other books.

This book has impressed me. All topics are very well described and worked through. It goes right to the point. I find it really helpful for anybody trying to dig into metal guitar style. Can be used for teaching as well as inspiring material for pros. Well done Rob Thorpe!!
