Customer Reviews

These are not logic puzzles as I had expected. They are still challenging, but questions are more elimination, ie "Mary lives in the brown house and Bobs house is three doors down and Mark has a red house who's house has the green door". If you are avid on puzzles you may like it but I was hoping for something less repetitive.

I love puzzles and anything that requires me to use logic, but this book takes the challenge to a whole new level! I tried a few of the puzzles and ended up leaving it aside. Maybe when I feel like I have several hours to devote to it, I will pick it up again but for now, it is well above my pay grade.

This book was purchased for my 11 year old who found these puzzles okay, not as challenging as he was expecting but he is on the bright side. Still, good logic puzzle book and fun to do.

This logic puzzle book was entertaining and challenging. It was a great way to pass time when I had nothing else to do and was able to show some to a friend and watch them struggle to solve the puzzle. The puzzles do get repetitive and have very similar cookie cutter methods in which once you figure out how to solve one the other puzzles will be solved in a similar manner. Of course there are some puzzles which fried my brains for a while but i think it's still worth buying for the right price.

These are not the usual American logic puzzles. They are British, so some of the language is a bit puzzling (Google straightened that out for me). It took me a while to finish them - pretty darned challenging!

Challenging is all one can say about these. I got them for a family member who is struggling with memory issues. I knew she was going to struggle with them, and intended them to be difficult. She has told me more than once they succeeded, but she has finished some and she is feeling better about things so all in all a worthy purchase.

This is great for the person who enjoys puzzles

This book has only a few puzzles and then re-wordings of those same puzzles. Once you have done the first few you have done them all.
